1. Conservation of natural habitats

Long-term aim

Conservation of natural habitats and implementation of Article 4 of the Convention, as well as of Resolutions (89) 1, (96) 3, (96) 4, (98) 5, (98) 6 and Recommendations (89) 14, (89) 15 and (89) 16 of the Standing Committee.

Medium-term aim

Setting-up of the Emerald Network of Areas of Special Conservation Interest (ASCI) in Europe, and developing the Pan-European Ecological Network.

Short-term aim

The development of the Emerald Network provides the participating countries with an important instrument for identifying and monitoring areas of special conservation interest being of the Pan-European importance in their national territories. It is also a tool to assist Contracting Parties in meeting their obligations under the Bern Convention and the CBD, particularly new CBD Aichi targets, e.g. on terrestrial and marine protected areas, endangered species, invasive alien species, etc.. It further prepares non EU Member States to meet the requirements of the EU Birds and Habitats Directives in view of a possible future accession.

In 2012, efforts will focus on the scientific assessment and validation of data provided by Contracting Parties which have completed Phase I of the Emerald Network constitution process (6 South-eastern Europe countries), in view of their future presentation to the Standing Committee for analysis and possible adoption. A new joint Council of Europe/European Commission project is under discussion to be implemented as from 2013 in 7 Central and Eastern European countries, and the South Caucasus, as a follow-up to the joint programme implemented in 2009-2011 in the region.

Co-ordination with the EU and the European Environment Agency will continue focussing on the harmonisation of the Natura 2000 and the Emerald networks, in view of strengthening the future Pan-European Ecological Network and maintain European natural heritage.

Funding

Council of Europe and voluntary contributions. A regional joint-project financed by the European Union.

Methods

Evaluation of ongoing projects; technical meetings at national/regional level; groups of experts and/or consultants; international co-ordination.

As foreseen in Resolution (98) 5, this exercise is being carried out in co-operation with the European Union. The European Union is together with its Member States responsible for sites in the EU Member States and the Council of Europe for the setting-up of the Emerald network outside the EU. The European Environment Agency is a common partner for both organisations with regards to the scientific evaluation of data.

Political interest

Protected areas have been widely recognized as a vital contribution to the conservation of the world's natural and cultural resources.

The tenth meeting of the Conference of the Parties of the Convention on Biological Diversity adopted a revised and updated Strategic Plan for Biodiversity, including the Aichi Biodiversity Targets, for the 2011-2020 period. Target 11 foresees that “by 2020, at least 17 per cent of terrestrial and inland water, and 10 per cent of coastal and marine areas, especially areas of particular importance for biodiversity and ecosystem services, are conserved through effectively and equitably managed, ecologically representative and well connected systems of protected areas and other effective area-based conservation measures, and integrated into the wider landscapes and seascapes”.

The setting-up of the Emerald Network of Areas of Special Conservation Interest is the regional contribution of the Bern Convention to the achievement of the CBD's Aichi Target 11. This process will follow the action plan adopted by the Contracting Parties to the Bern Convention at the 30th Standing Committee meeting in December 2010 (see document T-PVS/PA\(2010\)08revE_Calendar for the implementation of the Emerald Network of Areas of Special Conservation Interest 2011-2020)

European Diploma of Protected Areas

Long-term aims

Ensuring the promotion and the active preservation of biological, geological and landscape diversity and the sustainable use of natural resources through the European Diploma of Protected Area; establishing a set of areas of outstanding heritage value with exemplary and comprehensive management of the biological, cultural and landscape elements present there that can serve as reference points for the long-term study of wild species population and habitat changes, good managerial practice in the framework of sustainable development.

Medium-term aims

Regular monitoring of the areas holding the European Diploma to ensure that they are effectively managed, in compliance with the Recommendations adopted when the Diploma is awarded or renewed, preserving natural and semi-natural areas and some of Europe's most outstanding landscapes;

Short-term aims

Examining governments' applications for the European Diploma in view of the award or the renewal of the Diploma. Monitoring of the annual reports submitted by the managers of the awarded areas. Encouraging nature conservation work and affording a practical opportunity for the managers of the areas holding the Diploma to exchange views and experience. Raising awareness among the European general public and the target groups, particularly local people, of the Diploma.

Funding

Council of Europe and voluntary contributions.

Methods

Meetings of the Group of specialists; independent on-the-spot appraisals; national reporting; Resolutions to be presented to the Committee of Ministers concerning the award, renewal or non-renewal of Diplomas to areas.

Political interest

The European Diploma is a recognised, living and much sought-after instrument requiring a high level of commitment by both managers of diploma-holding areas and the authorities responsible for those areas. It is both a technical and political tool encompassing the values of the Council of Europe and also useful for solving and preventing problems relating to the protection of the awarded areas;

During the 46 years since it was set up in 1965, it has enabled substantive work to be carried out in the field of the protection and meticulous monitoring of sites of outstanding value in terms of biological, geological and landscape diversity and which are managed in an exemplary manner.
